*Pulled hundreds of thousands of years into the future,
a young girl fights for her freedom as she builds a new life.*

What would you do if you were pulled into the future?
Hundreds of thousands of years into the future?

Welcome to Duck's story. She's one of dozens of people from Earth pulled forward into another time, another place.

And just like you and I are doing in our own particular here-and-now, Duck is handling things as best she can. She's not alone. She's found a family of fellow time travelers and together they're finding their footing in the strange new galaxy that is their home now.

It's not a bright and sparkly new galaxy. Their trip forward has changed them. They have to learn who, and what, they are now – while they fight for their freedom, hide from the Service, and survive in a drastically different reality.
